Meet Heather Turner

by Beverly Leo

Heather Turner is a recent transplant to Sutton from the Cape, where she had worked in the restaurant industry for many years. Her computer knowledge started with Macs, but the restaurants used PC's, and she had to learn to deal with all the systems different used. She found an affinity for dealing with computer problems and solutions, and turned that into a second career.

From her home overlooking Blaisdell Lake in South Sutton, she has established Forfeng Designs, designing Web sites and helping people solve their computer problems. Though she has had no formal training in computer skills, her persistence and keen mind have helped her to master her trade.

She explains the name "Forfeng" as a Norwegian family name, and claims it is "someone who is a little loopy."

> As an artist who still paints, she brings a keen eve to her Web designs. Though she will provide a "traditionall" Web site for a client, her strong suit is imagination, color, and design. She has volunteered to revamp the Town of Bradford Web site, and you can see the results at www.bradfordnh.com. The Bradford Bridge is now online at the Bradford site.

Heather and husband Bill share their home with his two daughters, ages 14 and 19, a young German Shepherd Suki, and two cats.

OPEN SEVEN DAYS! 6:00am-10:00pm

Selectmen's Meetings in July

JULY 6: Appearances: Betty and Nelson Perron, following up a letter concerning the building addition of a neighbor, Mr. Skillings. The Perrons intend to sell a small piece of property and want to ascertain that the neighboring addition, and septic system, is following the zoning regulations and will have no adverse impact on their sale. They find no change of status on file for the design of the septic system for second yearround dwelling on the lot, and during their survey find the neighbor has added a deck extending over the side lot line minimum. There is also a question of right of way. The Code Enforcement Officer will be advised that steps must be taken for the deck violation, and the state will be contacted by the Perrons to ensure the septic is standard.

Ken Anderson, Transfer Station Superintendent, showed the new stickers and there was a discussion about how to identify summer residents with out of state licenses, and rentals. Ken has a few of the old stickers and a short-term pass for rentals. Methods of dispersal were discussed. These stickers will be distributed in the fall after Labor Day with proof of residency required; that will give the Transfer Station attendants time for year round residents to be stickered before next summer. French's Park users also need the sticker. Ken brought up the out of town residents with town property bringing in dump generated in their resident towns. He has observed small truckloads coming in from out of town. The Selectmen suggested if there is an excessive amount of trash being brought in and he finds out of town residents abusing the privilege, that he write a letter to the offending parties. A write-up advising stickers will be required after October 1 will be available at the Transfer Station. The Northeast Resource Recovery recommendations will be addressed in the future.

Tim Firkowski was referred to the Selectmen because he is building a driveway on Jackson Road, a Class V1 road that is an access to his camper. He was advised he would need to fill out a driveway permit, which then goes to the Road Agent. He was advised that a new state law assesses any camper or mobile unit as real estate and to be aware of damage to stone walls.

Steve Lucier, Road Agent, advises there has been some excavation equipment unloaded on town roads, which have caused damage. If the contractors can't unload on their property, they must use boards for a buffer for the road. A fee will be assessed for damages. Most contractors are reliable, Steve finds.

Provan & Lorber and SEA submitted proposals for the Center Road Study. One was bid for $10,600 and the other for $14,400; selectmen and road committee will study it by line.

The Lowe State Forest reimbursement was signed; the State sends the town $1500 in lieu of taxes.

The Kearsarge Area Preschool agreement was signed, after inquiries by Peter regarding the definition of "maintenance."

The Selectmen will meet with the Newbury selectmen July 12 regarding the Lake Todd Association plan to form a village district. They have received the updated copies of the eligible voters.

The lightning damage to the Town

Hall alarm system is estimated at about $600 and is now operative to the local station. A surge protector on the main panel will be installed with a lightning arrester before the box.

The elevator at the Community Center has had a sheared cable with damage to switches and door. Estimated repair cost $1000. Costs to come from emergency repair funds.

A correction to a gravel warrant was made and signed, a minor date change.

The Road Committee will meet on July 7.

Passing an ordinance banning legal individual fireworks was discussed, but the Selectmen felt the state ban on certain fireworks was sufficient at this time.

To the Editor:

On Friday and Saturday evening, July 16 and 17, the residents of Bradford were given an extraordinary opportunity to attend two superb chamber music concerts sponsored by the Lettvin Chamber Music Series at the Bradford Center Meeting House.

The performers were Biliana Voutchkova, violin; Agnieszka Dziubak, cello; and Olga Talroze, piano. Their program included music by Brahms, Rachmaninoff, Prokofiev, Kodaly, and Ravel. The Friday concert emphasized music for cello and piano but ended with the beautiful Trio elegiaque in g minor opus 1 for all three performers, a moving early work by Rachmaninoff.

On Saturday two of the pieces were for violin and cello with music by the Hungarian composer Zoltan Kodaly and a sonata by Maurice Ravel. Once again all three performers collaborated on the final work, the Trio in c minor opus 101 by Johannes Brahms, which was a moving and fitting end to two evenings of wonderful chamber music.

Each of the artists brought to the music her own unique personality, but blended in a matchless ensemble characterized by intensity and deep feeling, to which the audience could not help but respond.

Everyone associated with the production of these concerts must be congratulated, and I am sure all of us look forward to next summer's Lettvin Chamber Music Series.

Letters

To the Editor:

Have others of your readers experienced poor TV cable signal with TDS Telecom? Since the beginning of June I have experienced a weak signal on Channels 56 and 11, and from time to time on Channels 38 and 25. After more than a month of discussion with the company, the signal on Channel 11 has finally improved, but there are still ghosts (extra faint images.) The problem with 56 is alleged to be that the station itself does not put out a strong enough signal. Apparently the signal used to be stronger.

Mr. Mark Violette of TDS Telecom states that Channel 56 will be replaced. I would like to suggest that some of the new channels that we receive in recent years—all of which have raised rates—be dropped and that some channels chosen by popular vote of the subscribers be added to the basic package.

Mr. Violette has indicated he would be open to suggestions.

Here are my personal suggestions: Add Comedy Channel, the Learning Channel, Tech TV Channel, BBC America, and Channel 44, the sister channel to PBS Channel 2.. Eliminate Disney, House & Garden, and the Spanish Language Channel.

Send your own suggestions to the Bradford Bridge, and/or directly to TDS Telecom.

aving trouble selecting a major for college? Perhaps MyMajors.com can help. After entering login information, you are asked about courses taken in high school, grade point averages, SAT or ACT scores, and your feelings about working outdoors, with small or large groups, and a number of other factors. Then you are given six possible majors about which you can find more information. Perhaps the most important page is the final one: Frequently asked questions: other sources. This gives a number of links to colleges and universities that have major and career information websites.

As a former college professor, I wonder whether any of this newspaper's readers will find this relatively simplistic website truly useful. It is claimed that up to 80% of students coming to college or university have no idea of what they might like to major in. I used to tell my New England College students this was a desirable situation, particularly at a liberal arts college. The freshman year ought to be a time of intellectual exploration in many diverse areas, particularly in areas which you have had no experience in high school. But taking a smorgasbord of courses in the freshman year may mean it takes longer than four years to graduate for some of the highly structured (read: lots of required courses) majors like engineering.

Test this site. If you are a college graduate, go through the site, and see how accurately it selects your major. Let me know your results. I did it, and the number six choice, physics, was the major I did choose.

Have you found a particularly useful website? Contact me at

Planning Board Notes for August

At the July 13 Planning Board meeting, three applications were submitted for review with the following action taken:

Chestnut Hollow Subdivision. Bob Foor circulated the review completed by Circuit Rider Planner Lucy St. John of the 8–10 lot subdivision on Forest Street submitted by CNDJ Development. Her recommendation was that the Board not accept the application as complete at this time and listed items that need to be addressed. The applicant made a brief presentation of the project and the Board voted unanimously to continue the application until August 10. If the application is considered complete at that time, a public hearing will be held to hear comments from the abutters and the public.

Fearnley Subdivision. The Circuit Rider recommended that this 2-lot subdivision on Deer Valley Road not be accepted until several corrections have been made to the survey. The Board reviewed the report with the applicant and voted to continue this application until August 10.

Marr Subdivision. The Board reviewed this application to create a 2-lot subdivision on Rowe Mountain Road. Each lot has an existing house already in place with appropriate acreage, frontage, and individual wells and septic systems. Following the Circuit Rider's recommendation to require minor corrections to the plan, the application was accepted as complete. The Board agreed to the applicants' request to waive the customary delay between acceptance and approval and voted to approve the application.

Driveway Permits were approved for Marden on Oakdale Road and Jackson on West Meadow. Action on permit for Chivers on Breezy Hill Road was delayed until more information is provided.

Solitude Ridge. A letter was read into the record from the Town Counsel in response to a request from the attorney for Solitude Ridge to modify two of the conditions placed by the Board when this application was approved in January. To condition 3. Bond of Approx. $470K in place for road construction, was added "subject to review and partial release per RSA 674:36 III(b)." Condition 5. Private road to be constructed prior to sale of any lot, was removed because the road construction is covered by the bond that must be in place.

The Street Plat that provides access to the subdivision from West Road was also discussed. The Board determined that the mylar for the street plat can be signed before all of the conditions for the subdivision itself have been met, but that Provan & Lorber will verify the materials used in the construction of that road as well as the new road through the subdivision.

Resignation. Michelle Halsted submitted her resignation as an alternate to the Board, citing time constraints for participation. She was thanked for her service to the Board. Anyone interested in being an alternate to the Planning Board is welcome to attend a meeting or contact any member of the Board for more information.

Secretary. The Planning Board is actively seeking someone to provide needed secretarial services. This involves attending the Board meetings, preparing minutes, and assisting with correspondence and filing. Ads will be placed in local media. For more information, call Bob Foor at 938–6196.

The July Work Session focused on updating the Subdivision Regulations to reflect changes in the Zoning Ordinance. A public hearing will be scheduled prior to Planning Board adoption of any amendments

Real Estate Hints:

Industry News
by Laura Hallaban

This month I wanted to share some recent findings in the real estate industry as well as a fun survey on 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. Our market continues to be strong and, for the most part, avoids some of the negative trends seen in other parts of the country.

Elderly Debt: A recently published Harvard University study has revealed an alarming trend. It shows that mortgage debt carried by elderly borrowers has surged from $12,000 in 1989 to $44,000 in 2001. Gains in the overall debt burdens of older Americans outpace all other population segments. Experts attribute much of the added debt to medical bills, the desire to cover expenses incurred by their adult children, and predatory credit card and mortgage lenders. Low interest rates have made it easier for older borrowers to purchase costly residences or tap into their home equity, only to find out that they must continue working, borrow from others or file for bankruptcy because their fixed incomes don't meet their monthly expenses. One out of every four households headed by a senior still has a mortgage, up from one out of every six, bucking the trend that seniors strive to pay off their mortgage so they can enjoy their later years.

Professionals Priced Out of Market: The Center for Housing Policy reports that families relying solely on the income of someone working as an elementary school teacher, nurse or police officer would be hard pressed to buy a home in many of the nation's largest housing markets. Such professionals would be priced out of 48 out of 136 markets—including Boston. While the median salary of elementary school teachers rose nearly three percent, nurses rose four percent and police officers rose seven percent, the median U.S. home price rose nine percent last year. This study shows that in many instances, the benefits of low interest rates are canceled out by increases in property prices in most of the country.

The White House: House Values.com recently asked realtors from around the country to determine the market value of the world's most famous residence. As you know, realtors spend a good part of their time trying to determine market value by evaluating what has sold in an area and what is currently on the market. That proved to be the toughest part of this task, as the White House is truly incomparable. Also, it is next to impossible to put a price on its stature as a national treasure. That said, the answer is $106 million. At that price, you get 132 rooms, 35 baths and 29 fireplaces, along with a dentist's office, movie theater, running track and bowling lane. To qualify for a mortgage on this property, you would need an annual salary of at least $18 million and your monthly mortgage payment would be $667,000. HouseValues.com conducted the survey to estimate the value of the ultimate listing, knowing full well this historic house has almost no chance of ever being on the market. So, how does the White House compare to the typical American house? That house comes in at $223,000, with a monthly mortgage of $1,235 for 3 bedrooms, 1.5 baths and 1 fireplace. By the way, it would take 570 gallons of paint to paint the White House—do I hear vinyl siding?

July 20: Roll Call: Bruce Edwards, Chairman; Peter Fenton, Selectman; Dave Pickman, Selectman. Town Personnel, Cheryl Behr, Administrative Assistant Minutes of July 6 accepted.

Appearances: Matt Ordway, regarding transfer station, second appearance. Matt feels he was rudely addressed for a minor incorrect separation when he had an amount of trash that had been correctly separated Selectmen agreed a simple comment would be sufficient. Bruce emphasized that the station attendants are doing a very good job and it is their job to find unrecycled trash.

Jim Bibbo inquired about gating a part of the Class V1 Deer Valley road beyond his house with a latched gate (unlocked) to keep his livestock away from his house and vehicles. RSA 231:45 states a Class V1 may be subject to gates and bars with a vote of the town. Mr Bibbo was informed that he needed a warrant article for the Town Meeting in March. The Selectmen will investigate further.

Selectmen discussed with Ken Anderson, Transfer Station Manager, a second gate for the transfer site above the green gate off 114 and considered closing the gate off 103, to allow the highway crew access to the gravel pit at their convenience and still have the transfer area gated. This was put on hold. Ken has solved the problem of the 103 unauthorized access.

Steve Lucier, Road Agent, said there was money for sidewalk improvement available. He would like Bradford to join other towns in a highway mutual aid disaster program directed by UNH. Selectmen inquired about personnel payments and Steve will come back with the information. They also discussed the relocation of the West Main St. road sign.

Treasurer's Report was reviewed.

Accounts payable manifest signed. Building Inspector Chip Meany and the Selectmen talked about making a simple driveway permit faster to obtain. A problem arises if there are other issues from the land use boards of which Chip isn't aware. Selectmen will add a statement to the driveway permit application saying this is in no way a home building permit. Bruce asked if the grade specs should be added to the driveway permit. Chip also wants an occupancy permit signed by the applicant with each building permit. Chip will issue a Cease and Desist on a Breezy Hill permit until the necessary paperwork is submitted. Steve noted a driveway construction on Davis Road and will notify Shoreland and other Chip would like an assistant building inspector, ideally someone who could sit in on Planning Board meetings for communication with him. With a follow up, Mr. Thayer has razed his unpermitted structure on Carter Hill Rd. Dave inquired if the state has given permission for the trailer on 103 on land of KELCO for the entrance.

Lake Todd Village District voting information signed and to be posted July 21st.

Cheryl has received information from FEMA regarding a hazard mitigation plan. There are funds for a contractor of $6,000 which the town must match in cash or volunteer time. She estimates this would be 240 hours of town volunteer time. The project would track "vulnerability" areas. Bruce will look into it.

Budget committee meeting September 27th, Peter will attend.

Abatements signed.

Leave Those Clippings on the Lawn!

Leaving grass clippings on the lawn to decompose back into thesoil is a good way to recycle essential nutrients and water back to the turf. Studies demonstrate that clippings return nearly one-third of the fertilizer applied, as well as small amounts of essential micronutrients; because grass is 70 percent water, leaving clippings as they're cut helps reduce the need for irrigation.

Clippings decompose rapidly and don't contribute to thatch buildup as once believed. While decomposing, they act as a natural mulch, helping to shade grass roots and conserve important soil moisture. Returned clippings provide food for beneficial soil bacteria, which decompose thatch and perform other important functions that help create a healthy turf environment.

The following practices will maximize the benefits of recycling grass clippings:

Mow frequently: frequent mowing will maintain a vigorous, healty turf. As a rule, turfgrass should be mowed every five to seven days to a height of 2" to 2 1/2". This will avoid the problem of long clippings smothering the underlying grass.

Another immportant principle involves removing no more than one third of the leaf per mowing. Removing larger amounts shocks and weakens the plants, taking them weeks to recover fully and causing excessive browning.

Other mowing practices: Mow grass when the lawn is dry. Wet grass doesn't cut as cleanly, clogs up under the rotary mower, or forms a wet mat on the lawn itself which is unsightly and requires removal to avoid smothering the turf below. Mowing dry grass takes less time than mowing wet grass.

Keep all types of mowing equipment sharp and in good working condition. Dull, improperly adjusted equipment tugs on the grass crowns, weakening the plant, tearing the grass blades, and leaving ragged edges that provide ready access for the invasion of disease and insects. It also destroys the aesthetic appearance of the turf.

Proper fertilization: Fertilizer, particularly nitrogen, has long been recognized for enhancing the color and top growth of turfgrass. Fertilization is also an important part of management to help maintain a dense turf, which is the best prevention against an invasion of weeds.

The quantity and source of nitrogen applied per season has a direct effect on the quantity of clippings generated. To maintain the desired turf color and density without generating excessive clippings, apply no more than one pound of actual nitrogen per 100 square feet of lawn area in each of three applications--preferably in September, May, and July.

Use nitrogen sources with "slow release" characteristics whenever possible. These formulations release their nitorgen to the turf in a slower, more uniform fashion than conventional nitrogen sources. When accompanied by suggested mowing practices, this uniform release helps avoid excessive clippings and the need for bagging.

Using low-growing (dwarf) grasses: Everyone dreams of a lawn that reduces the time and expense of mowing, watering, and fertilizing. For years turf breeders have been working with a clas sof grasses called hard fescues to produce dwarf, low-growing varieties to fulfill those dreams. A few of these new grasses, growing only half as tall as standard varieties, are now available in our region. Ask for them at your local garden center.

In early June, Trinity Bigford of Bradford and 2002 graduate of KRHS, participated in the 2004 NCAA women's rowing championships in Sacramento, California with her team mates from Ithaca College. Recipe

From The Lhasa Moon Tibetan Cookbook, by Tsering Wangmo

Stuffed Dumplings (Momo)

These steamed packets of filled pasta best represent Tibetan food.

Basic Momo Dough

2 1/2 cups flour and 3/4 cups water Mix the flour and water into dough, and knead it well. The amount of water may vary. The dough should be as moist as for ordinary bread. Cover the dough and set it aside to rest while preparing the momo filling.

Shaping: Knead the dough until it become elastic. Keep the surface of the dough, your hands, and the work table well floured. Roll the dough under your palms to a long cylinder about one inch in diameter. Break off one inch balls of dough. Roll each ball in your palms to make a smooth sphere, and then press to flatten it into a small circle. Used a floured rolling pin to enlarge the circle, working in a circular motion around the edges so that the middle remains slightly thicker. Place a tablespoon of filling in the center, and work the edges up and closed to seal the dumpling. You don't need to moisten the edges of the dough to make them stick.

Beef Momo Filling

1 lb. beef

1 large onion, finely chopped

4 cloves garlic, finely chopped

1/2 tsp ground Sichuan pepper

1/3 cup green onion or chives, chopped

1 tsp oil

1/4 cup water

3 stalks celery, finely chopped

1/4 tsp salt

Chop the meat very finely. Mix it thoroughly with all the other ingredients. Fill the momos, and steam for 10 minutes in lightly oiled steamer tray.

by Ann Eldridge

(note: this article was first printed in September of 1999.)

From where I am now living, I look down on Lake Massasecum. A few miles east and 600 feet below me, the hot dryness of the year is fully illustrated. The shining sand rim shows clearly wide and white. The boats seem more concentrated than usual in the remaining shallow, warm water and they seem louder for it. They remind me a little of tadpoles in a pool that is fast disappearing.

A sandy-shored lake is a very unusual occurrence in New Hampshire. Several locations on Massasecum are labeled "Inland New England Acidic Lakeshore Communities". The reference botanists are making is to the complex associations of plants that exist as a result of the concurrence of a deep, sandy substrate and a set of high-stress water dynamics. There are only twelve known sites in NH with this lengthy classifying phrase attached to them, thus making them among the rarest ecosystems in the state. The two sites on Lake Massasecum are given rankings of S1S2, "critically imperiled within the state...". These inland acidic sandy shores with their particular collection of flora have more in common with places further east and south on the Atlantic coastal flood plain. Something unusual must have happened here since the glaciers vacated to cause such a remarkable collection of phenomena: the Bradford Bog contains a remnant stand of Atlantic white cedar, another example of a community at the western limit of its range, Lake Massesecum with its sand shore habitats, and an equally remarkable black gum swamp by the southern edge of the lake, just inside Warner.

The several distinct plant communities that remain on Massasecum are made up of plants that are not rare, with the notable exception of the ubiquitous Sclerolepis uniflora. These DO appear in other kinds of wetlands, but here these assemblages of plants, and probably invertebrates as well, distinguish themselves as being particularly suited not only to the sand/gravel/nutrient-poor substrate, but to the fluctuating water levels and the buffeting of wind, wave and winter ice. The less flexible species just can't make it here for long. The hardy souls of these communities arrange themselves at the water's edge in a series of zones according to their needs for submersion or dryness and their tolerance for wave action and level fluctuation.

There are, in botantist terms, several distinct communities of these hardy wetland plants on the less disturbed areas of shoreline. The weather, soils and water action differs from one part of the lake to another. One of the most significant groupings is known as the "twig rush (Cladium mariscoides) lakeshore community" which is dominated by that species. Here, it also includes hairy-fruited sedge (Carex lasiocarpa), slender spike-rush (Eleocharis tenuis), bog beak-rush (Rhyncospora fusca), beach rush (Juncus pelocarpus) and sweet gale (Myrica gale). There is poetry in these names.

And there are a lot of names here. Ninety-three different species of plants were documented from just one stretch of shoreline measuring less than 250 feet in length. Bulblet umbrella-sedge. One-flowered muhly. Boreal St. Johnswort. Button bush. Royal fern. Meadow beauty. Three-way sedge. Horehound. Mermaid weed. Pipewort. Bladderwort. Floating heart. Watershield....

An artificial damming of the lake, the fate of most lakes used for human recreation, would mean the end of the fluctuating water levels and thus the influx of more predictable plant life. Needless to say, lawns, cleared beaches and boat launches have erased much of the original habitat and nip away at that small amount remaining. And needless to say, these things can't be seen from a fast boat.

Many thanks again to Deb Dunlop of Newbury for our botanical phone consultations.
